

Crónicas al borde: @cardenilla Sound, Narrative, and Transformation

The Digital Humanities Institute welcomes Dr. Julianna Zambrano, professor of Literature from Universidad San Francisco de Quito, to host a digital storytelling workshop. Dr. Zambrano studies liberation, resistance, memory, and justice practices in writing and poetics in contexts of violence, catastrophes and repression. She also researches the connections between human rights and literature, especially with regard to the right to narrate.

Dr. Zambrano's workshop will explore the toolbox, methods, and materials used in Crónicas al borde's audio documentaries and sounds essays to approach stories of transformation and their relation to contemporary debates on migration, identities, and human rights.

Thursday March, 2, 2023
3-4:30 p.m.
UNF Gallery of Art
Building 2, Suite 1001

For more information, email Anne Pfister at a.pfister@unf.edu

